

Mapping Multi-Racialization Moments

I asked folks, at what moment do you feel that others make you aware of your multiracial identity?

I then mapped them according to type of communication (ranging from interpersonal to mass) and possibility for violence (including anything from microaggressions and verbal harassment to physical bodily harm).

Blue moments are places this toolkit might be able to intervene and provide an opportunity to express and assert their racial identity.

The aim is to move these moments from their original position in grey to a more protected space lower on the chart.

Vulnerable

traffic stop

doctors visit

public law enforcement

social group

irl date

social group

classroom

public posting

irl date

url date

family group

online messaging

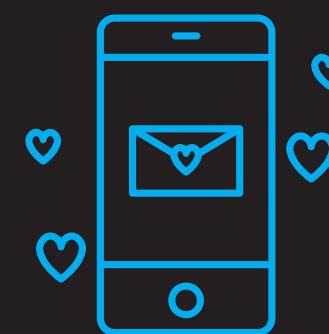

public posting

Protected

family group

url date

online messaging

Interpersonal
(one on one)

Mass
(broadcast)